SCON has taken the initiative to aware the community regarding World Breast Feeding Week, which observed from 1 August to 7 August to create awareness about the importance of breastfeeding for both the mother and baby's health. Students from SCON have taken the lead in this program where they gather the relatives, friends and other community people for the awareness. To say the initial 24 hours after giving birth are vital would simply be an understatement! The moment is filled with the fusion of overwhelming emotions. For new mother, it might feel a little anxious and concerned but students had put together some tips around the most challenging breastfeeding that assist mothers in preparing for those initial moments. With the role play students had given information about importance of breast feeding on the basis of following points,

- Inform people about the importance of protecting breastfeeding.
- Anchor breastfeeding support as a vital public health responsibility.
- Engage with individuals and organizations for greater impact.

- Galvanize action on protecting breastfeeding to improve public health.
- Initiation of breastfeeding within one hour of birth,
- Exclusive breastfeeding until babies are six months old, and
- Continued breastfeeding along with nutritionally adequate and safe complementary foods, until age two years old or beyond.

The benefits of breastfeeding and nurturing mother-infant interaction to prevent infection and promote health and development are especially important when health and other community services are themselves disrupted or limited

Mothers and infants should be supported to remain together, and practice skin-to-skin contact and/or kangaroo care whether or not they or their infants have suspected, probable, or confirmed COVID-19 virus infection. Breastfeeding counseling, basic psychosocial support, and practical feeding support should be provided to all pregnant women and mothers with infants and young children.

People enjoyed the programme and got proper information about breast feeding. People were satisfied with programme.
